Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-47 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The present invention relates to a technology for improving the number of rewrite assurances for a non-volatile memory, for example, a technology effective for application to a microcomputer with an electrically erasable and programmable flash memory built therein.

The claimed invention (claim 2 as representative) recites features such as: "...the central processing unit executes a predetermined process to thereby generate error correcting information and add the same to data to be written only for a specified partial storage area of the non-volatile memory and allow an error decision and an error correction based on the error correcting information to be effected on the data read from the specified partial storage area."

The prior arts of record teach that a data storage system includes a storage medium divided into storage areas, and multiple read/write probes each of which performs access operations to read and write data in a respective storage area of the storage medium (Saito et al. US 6,000,021 is an example of such prior arts). The prior arts of record also teach error correcting code (ECC) strategies used to recover data that may have been corrupted. The ECC encoder encodes the data block with error correction data (Weng et al. US 5,428,630 is an example of such prior arts). The prior arts, however, do not teach that only a specified partial storage area of the non-volatile memory is intended for a software ECC process. Since ECC codes are added to the partial storage area alone and an error correction is made thereto to thereby increase the number of rewrite assurances, substantially needless waste of each storage area by ECC codes can be avoided as compared with a configuration in which the ECC codes are added to all the write data without distinction regardless of the storage areas. Hence the prior arts of record do not anticipate nor render obvious the claimed inventions. Thus, claims 1-47 are allowable over the prior arts of record.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with the applicant's attorney Mitchell W. Shapiro on 3/31/2005.

The application has been amended as follows: In line 9 of the abstract, "ECC codes can b avoided" is corrected to -ECC codes can be avoided-. The corrected abstract is attached.
